FOREWORD

Forty-five years ago the sound of construction was heard on a hill located on Fourth Street and Maryland Avenue where Shenandoah High School now stands. A new school which would serve as a guidepost to many people for years to come was being built.

In its halls were to be heard the sounds of footsteps, steadfastly advancing toward greater and more significant goals.

As the years passed, new faces appeared as others left and the school won honors in achievement, scholarship, music, and athletics while growing yearly in fame and reputation.

As our community continues to grow, sounds of construction are again heard on a new high school.

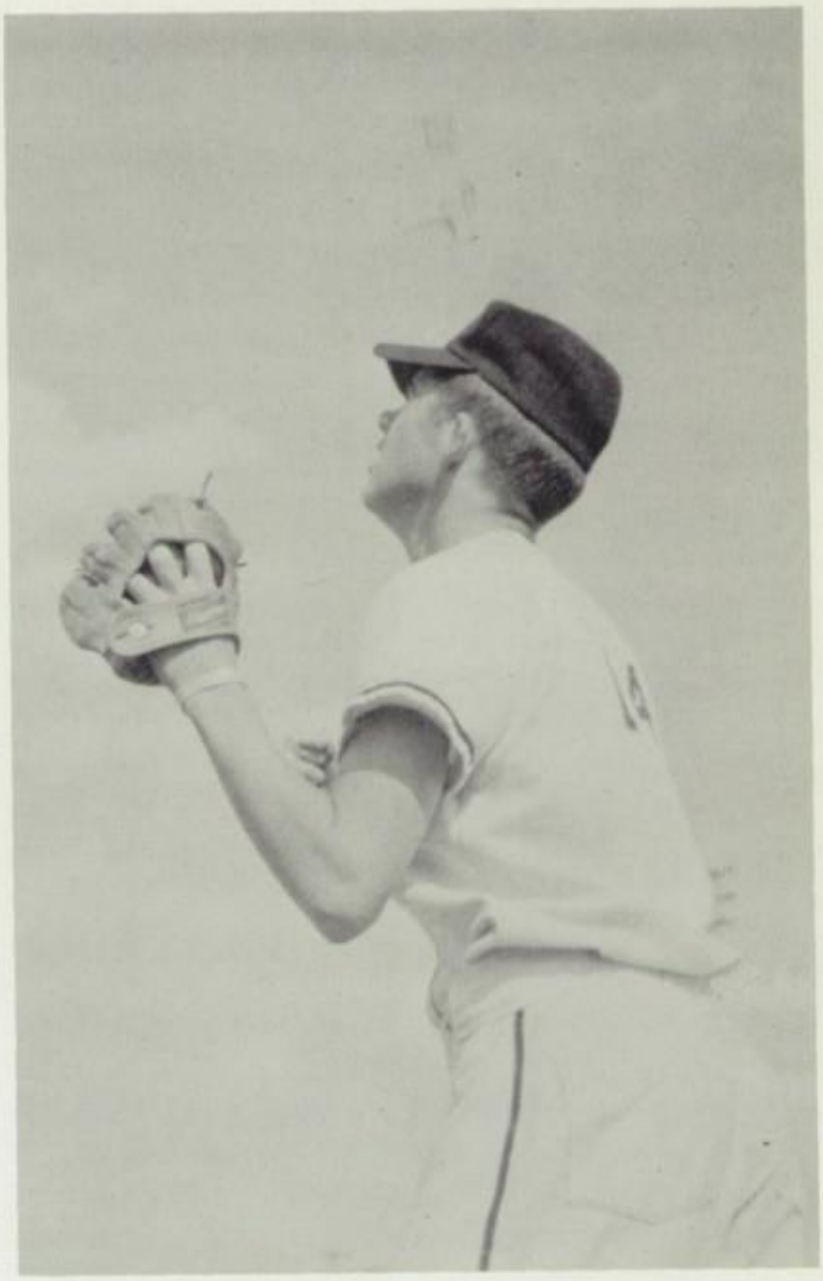
This new school will bring with it greater educational advantages for the youth of our community.

The future years will indeed be an advancing step in our growth.

Mr. Logan performs an experiment for his chemistry class.

English students do their classwork as Mrs. Newton supervises.

At a Beta Club meeting Shirley Wilt serves refreshments to Monnie Christian and Jeanne Roudabush.



Jimmy Hansbrough stands ready to catch a fly ball.

DEDICATION

To all those who saw in Shenandoah a hope--a hope that she would someday be a great school--a school that was destined to send out great leaders in all walks of life.

To all those who remained loyal to her through adversity and success, war and peace, depression and prosperity.

To all who devotedly gave their very lives that we today might have the opportunity to learn, to better ourselves and the world, and that we might uphold, enjoy, and cherish the privileges and traditions which have been handed down to us through forty-five years of noble effort--we are greatly indebted.

To all those both living and dead who have contributed to the spirit of Shenandoah, we most humbly dedicate this, our last issue of the Shenandoah.

The history of our school is portrayed by words and pictures in the many volumes of The Shenandoah. An unusual pastime of Doris Shuler's has been looking through these many volumes.

One of the most traditional services of the school is the lighting of the Juniors' candles. Here Senior Larry Tate lights Barbara Kite's candle.

Larry Tate receives the trophy for the best all-round athlete of the 1960 Senior Class from former Coach Stanley.

History, tradition, achievement,

One phase of our school spirit has always been shown through enthusiastic participation in sports and through the loyalty of our fans.

and spirit - to this we dedicate our book.

This building was constructed in 1928 and is now used for the high school department. The building on the extreme right was built in 1916 and destroyed by fire in 1934.

Paul Shuler, father of David Shuler, stands beside the school's first bus that was used in 1935.

As our last year unfolds at S.H.S.,

HISTORY

Forge was the name first given to the village, which is now the town of Shenandoah. In 1884 this village was incorporated under the name of Milnes. On March 20, 1890, through an act of the Virginia Legislature, the name of the town was changed to Shenandoah, which means "Daughter of the Stars."

The first Shenandoah school was built on Third Street in 1884 and 1885. To this brick building, which was two stories high with one classroom on each floor, six rooms were added by 1907. Four years later two people, Elsie Coverstone and Ollie Knipple Comer, made up the first graduating class of Shenandoah High School. Harry S. Stevens was principal at this time.

The town grew and prospered, and in 1916 a new brick building, which contained twelve rooms and an auditorium, seating 350 persons, was constructed at a cost of $23,000. The old eight room building was sold, but was reclaimed in 1922 to accommodate the high school students.

In 1928 the left wing of the present building, which contained ten classrooms, a library, and gymnasium, was erected at a cost of $43,000. The old building built in 1885 was torn down.

Christmas Holidays of 1934 brought tragedy; the 1916 elementary building burned beyond repair.

Soon after, a large addition consisting of twenty classrooms and a large auditorium was added to the high school building at a cost of $90,000 making a total of 31 rooms, a gymnasium, and an auditorium. From this building will go forth the fiftieth and last graduating class of Shenandoah High School.

James Shuler, the prosecuting attorney, questions Robert Shuler in a pep rally as Judge Hill and Clerk Wendell Turner look on.

We face a year of constant living and learning.

Sandra Huffman, Billy Fravel, Craig Givens, Mary Jane Lawhorne, and Jimmy Hansbrough are enjoying themselves at the annual Christmas Dance, which is a highlight of the social season.

Entering Senior English Class are Gloria Watson and Sally Dodson.

to improve ourselves in anticipation of tomorrow.

Administration

To instruct, to influence, and to guide young people; to present a standard of intelligence and morality for these formative years; to improve the purposes and dreams of adolescence; and to indicate the correct way of living---these are the varied and often difficult duties of our high school administration. The growth---mental, physical, and spiritual---of many students is supervised by them; and our activities are sponsored by them; and our privileges are granted by them. They are educators, instructors, and advisors.

As facilities at Shenandoah High School have been expanded throught the years, its administration, too, has been increased from the original two members in 1884 to sixteen high school teachers in 1961.

FACULTY

Dear Students:

This institution, to which you have given so much of your loyalty and devotion, is about to become a memory. Yet, the aims, the ideals, the aspirations of this school should abide with you always.

The purposes of Shenandoah High School have been to prepare you, as an individual, to meet life's problems with greater understanding, courage and resourcefulness; to interpret the contemporary scene and to reach intelligent decisions concerning it.

I trust that you will learn to regard your educational opportunities as a means of spiritual and intellectual growth, that in a chaotic world you may achieve the calmness and serenity necessary to think and to act with dignity, poise and judgment.

Classes

Approximately 330 students today make up the student body of Shenandoah High School. Each of these students has different interests and a personality of his own. Being different in their interests, the students are divided into these groups: college preparatory, commercial, and general. There are foreign languages, complicated mathematics, and science for the college preparatory students. The commercial students prepare for future careers by taking shorthand, typing, and bookkeeping. The students who have not decided upon a definite vocation often take the general course which includes a wide variety of subjects.

Features

Prominent in every school year are the special efforts and noteworthy accomplishments of students.

The auditorium is the scene of plays, programs, concerts, and pageants which display the many and varied talents of the students. In the gymnasium are held the many dances and the Junior-Senior Prom. Frivolous, perhaps, on the surface, but with deep and lasting meaning to each and every student is this phase of high school life.

For beauty, special talents, outstanding events, and awards, this the Features section is dedicated to the student body rich with potentiality in every direction. These features, more than anything else, teach us co-operation and consideration of others, qualities so necessary in our future lives.

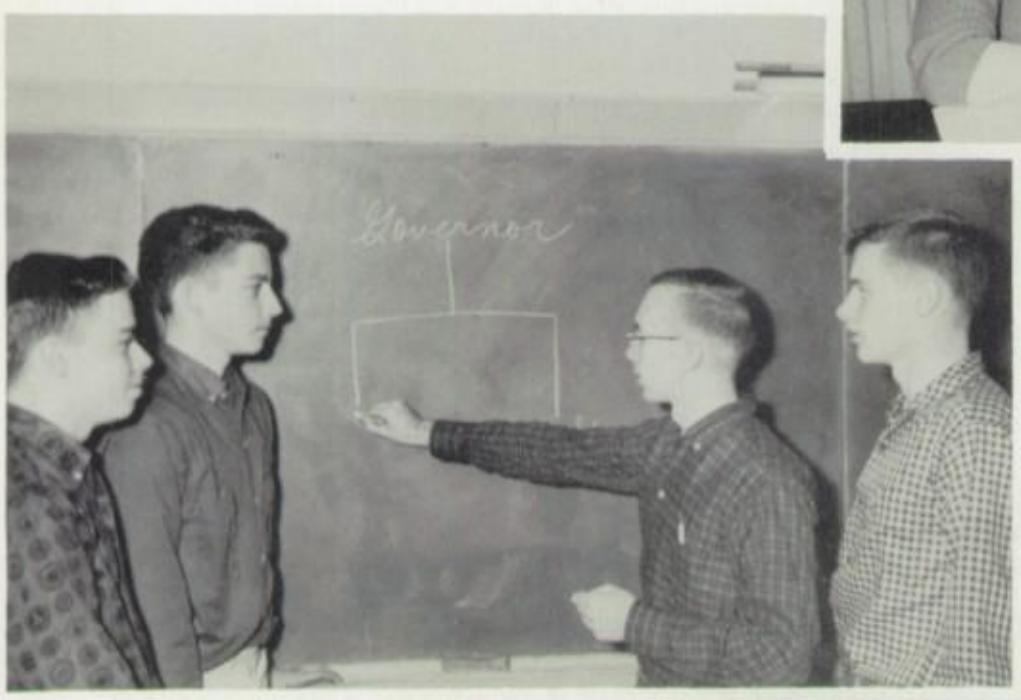
Billy Fravel received the Bausch & Lomb Honorary Science Award as evidence of his superior scientific aptitude and is eligible to compete for science scholarships. He also received a Letter of Commendation from the National Merit Scholarship Corporation for his high score.

Gloria Watson was selected by the faculty and senior class as our representative in the state-wide Daughters of America Revolution Contest. The award is based on leadership, scholarship, and citizenship.

The Roy Housden Memorial Award for outstanding scholarship, personality, and athletics was awarded to Bobby Clem.

HONORS



1960 Girls' State delegates, Barbara Kite and Gloria Watson, explain the purposes of Girls' State to Frances Ann Cave and Jeanne Roudabush, 1961 delegates.

1961 Boys' State delegates, Allen Boozer and Joe Martin, listen to Jimmy Linebarger and Elmer Alger, who attended the session last summer, as they explain Boys' State procedures.

All state band members were: (first row) Pauletta Kite, Ann Sessoms, and Brenda Lam, who made Concert "B" Band; (second row) Jimmy Hansbrough, Billy Lam, Peggy McHenry, and Mary Jane Lawhorne, who made Concert "A" Band.

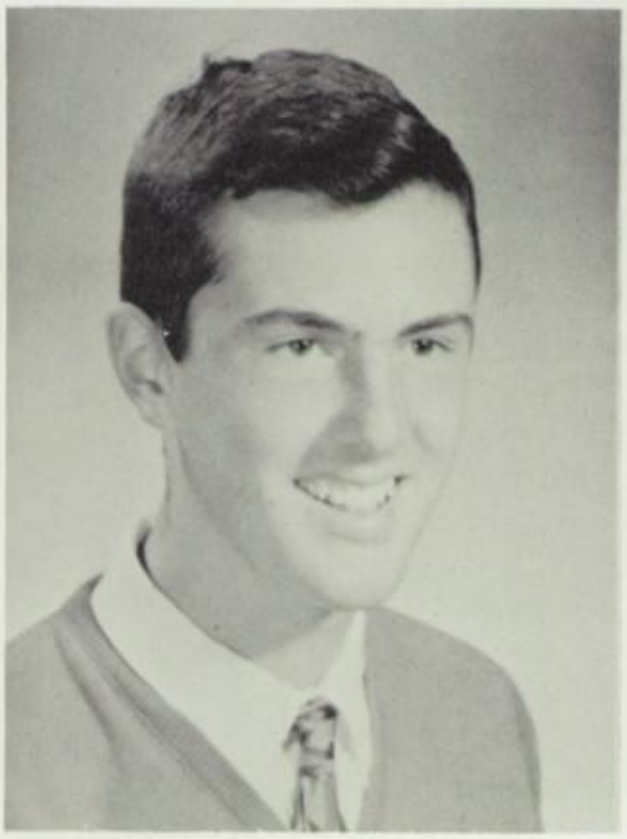
Sally Dodson and Eddie Glenn were elected queen and king of the annual Valentine Dance by the student body. Representatives of each homeroom made up the court.

HONORS

Frances Ann Cave, candidate for State Beta Vice President, discusses her campaign speech with Nancy Kite, Candidate for Regional FBLA Reporter.

Barbara Kite, Shirley Wilt, and Doris Shuler add the final touches to their FBLA bulletin board that won first place at the Regional Meeting.

Brenda Lam won the Local Bland Memorial Scholarship Contest and will represent Shenandoah in the zone contest this spring.



Craig Givens was awarded a Certificate of Educational Development in recognition of his outstanding performance on the National Educational Development Tests. This award reflects credit both to the student and to the school.

Activities

Activities, the clubs and organizations which add variety to our everyday routine, are an important part of our well-planned schoolyear. In addition to supplying a much needed deviation from our daily schedule, activities give us useful experience and knowledge.

Each organization advocates good sportsmanship and stresses the importance of co-operation, thus providing training which will prove invaluable after graduation, as well as during school. High school activities also make up a large part of our social life at S. H. S., as various clubs sponsor dances and group projects. These extra-curricular activities provide many experiences that will long be remembered by us, the participants as high-lights of our high school career.

MODERN MUSIC MASTERS

Membership in this National Music Honor Society is on the basis of scholarship, character, cooperation, leadership and service. A Modern Music Master must pledge himself to uphold the ideals and aspirations of the Society, strive to always set a good example; continue to be of service through music to his school, church and community; and remain humble with the honors which have been bestowed upon him.

OFFICERS

First Row: Brenda Lam, President and Mary Jane Lawhorne, vice-president. Second Row: Donna Kite, secretary and Pat Hilliard, treasurer.

Last year's officers initiate the new members: Pat Hilliard, Donna Kite, and Joe Hammock.

ANNUAL STAFF

In this last edition of the Shenandoah we have tried to present a clear picture of school life in a small town in the Valley of Virginia.

The Annual Staff is grateful to all of our friends--the student body, faculty, and advertisers--who have made this yearbook possible.

We hope you will cherish this annual always and continue to enjoy the memories of SHS which it holds.

The Safety Patrol is composed of students particularly interested in promoting the safety of their classmates. To maintain order on the buses and to enforce school safety rules to and from school are the main duties of this organization.

In the spring the patrols plan to attend a baseball game in Washington, D. C.

The captains of the patrol are C. W. Hunt and Eddie Glenn.

SAFETY PATROL

First Row: Sandra Shuler, Dale Grimsley, Amenda Campbell, Sally Dodson, Doris Shuler, and Barbara Kite. Second Row: Peggy Kite, Sylva Dovel, Frances Supples, Janet Painter, Carolyn Morris, and Linda Louderback. Third Row: Donna Kite, Betty Duncan, Pauletta Kite, Jimmy Hansbrough, Peggy Baugher, and Elmer Rhinehart. Fourth Row: Nancy Kite, Gloria Burner, Peggy Good, Julia Sinclair, Jane Alger, and Joyce Campbell. Fifth Row: Bobby Clem, Bonnie Stanley, Juanita Hammer, Lela Laconia, Dennis Nicholson, and Jack Supples. Sixth Row: Phyllis A. Vaughan, Peggy Comer, Louella Breeden, Gladys Dennis, Judy Robertson, and Peggy Shenk.

FUTURE BUSINESS LEADERS OF AMERICA

The chapter's main purposes--to develop competent aggressive business leaders, develop character, and train for useful citizenship--are stressed by its officers. They are first row: Gloria Watson, president; Oletha Comer, secretary; and Doris Davis, vice president. Second row: Shirley Wilt, parliamentarian; Elizabeth Ramsey, treasurer; Clarice Brantman, reporter; and Mrs. Betty Foltz, advisor.

One of its activities included the installation of the officers in a special assembly. The chapter also plans to enter an essay, an exhibit, and a bulletin board for competition at the Regional meeting at Madison College as well as contestants in public speaking and spelling.

STUDENT COOPERATIVE ASSOCIATION

The Student Cooperative Association is composed of the entire student body and a Council made up of home-room representatives and the club's officers. Built around the motto, "Triumph through integrity," its purpose is to help each individual to realize his ability and to strive toward this high goal.

Sponsoring a talent show at the P. T. A. meeting and publishing the school newspaper are the activities of this club.

Officers

A highlight of the S.C.A. campaign was an elaborate display of posters and campaign slogans.

BETA CLUB

This club is a national organization composed of juniors and seniors who have maintained a "B" average or above throughout high school. The club's objectives, which follow its motto "Let us lead by serving others" are to stimulate effort, reward achievement, and encourage its members to continue their education after high school.

Club's projects this year include representation at the State Beta Convention in Richmond in March and setting up road blocks for the Polio Drive.

Officers

Elmer Alger, president; Hilda Dofflemoyer, secretary; Frances Ann Cave, treasurer; Shirley Wilt, vice president; and Mrs. Shirley Judd, advisor.

These Seniors attended the state convention last year. First row: Oletha Comer, Doris Shuler, Barbara Kite, and Shirley Wilt. Second row: Billy Fravel, Elmer Alger, Billy McHenry, and Jimmy Linebarger.

Athletics

Athletics play an important part in the well-rounded life of students. From September to June there are scheduled competitions in various sports with nearby schools.

Autumn Friday nights found students and teachers in the stands of Shenandoah Memorial Park, waving and cheering the Indians' football team. Through the efforts of the cheerleaders and the band, the cheering section became noisier and more spirited with each game. Shenandoah's enthusiastic coach and spirited teams turned out many victorious and thrilling moments for the many fans.

With the arrival of winter, the sports scene changes to an indoor setting where basketball dominates.

Warmer weather brings another shift in the sports world. Baseball and track are the main attractions now.

At the close of the school year outstanding players, in each sport are awarded letters and trophies in a special assembly.

CHEERLEADERS

The endless job of our cheerleaders is to lead the students in cheers of victory and to keep up the spirits of the players whether we are winning or losing a game. No football or basketball game would be complete without the cheerleaders leading us in the school song. . . .

Sally Dodson, captain; and Phyllis Vaughan.

First row: Linda Louderback and Amenda Campbell. Second row: Dale Grimsley and Peggy Baugher.

the rest because they're best.
So, hail to Shenandoah, hail!
Hail to our school!
We're back of you, old school;
you'll sure win fame.
We're loyal to you, Shenandoah,
both loyal and true, Shenandoah.
We'll back you to stand; you're the best in the land;
For you know we have said,
RAH! RAH! Shenandoah.
Go, ye, orange and black, Shenandoah;
Put this game in the sack, Shenandoah.
For we love you; we adore you; there is nothing placed before you;
You're the best in the land,
Shenandoah! RAH! RAH!

Second row: Bobby Moore, Bobby Clem, Wendell Turner, Elmer Alger, Robert Shuler, and Lynn Jenkins.

TRACK

Broad jumping, pole vaulting, high jumping, shot putting, mile relay, 100-yard dash, and various forms of other activities---these make up the schedule of a track team participant. Constant exercise and conditioning are required to keep the body in good shape for these events. The hard work which these boys put into their sport is returned in the form of victories and praise from their fellow schoolmates.

Robert Shuler shows Alger and Turner how to throw the discus.

Elmer Alger jumps the high hurdles.

Financial backing is a necessity for any publication. Without these industries, businessmen and women, and patrons, the SHENANDOAH would not be possible. These pages are not only for autographs, but serve as recognition to the people who have aided us. In gratitude and respect for their encouragement, we conclude the 1961 SHENANDOAH.
